

INNERPLACE BIRTHDAY PARTY AT 24

Trendy City private concierge service and members' club Innerplace chose the Star Trek-gone-disco style of City venue 24 for its fourth birthday.

Thankfully, Vulkans and Klingons were conspicuous by their absence at the bash, attended by managing director Tim Badham, who proved that he knows how to hold a party.

Drinks came courtesy of Russia-made vodka Doggan, one of the few actually made in Russia (at the Buturlinovskiy Distillery, to be exact) and which was mixed into some delicious cocktails of the sort probably not available in the Steppes.

Maybe it was the lighting, maybe it was the booze, or maybe it was just the way it was, but a series of the most beautiful party people seemed to have been assembled for the night.

"I thought I was at a catwalk show," marvelled one impressed punter.

Top right: The girls from Innerplace
Below left: Partygoers Jessica Yeomans, Phiroze Bilimoria and Rissy Mitchell
Right: One of the beautiful party people

